DANGER!

Attends the Pan Handle Train Wreckers.

Fireman Burke, Their Victim, Dies and the Trio Held for Murder in the First Degree.

Orth Stein, of Lafayette, Turns up a Slick Forger at St. Louis.

FEAR LYNCHING.

Train Wreckers Held for Murder
LOGANSPORT, Ind., June 15.—Vice, Justice and Berry, the three train wreckers, who sent a Pan Handle passenger train into a ditch, at Windfall, three weeks ago, were given a preliminary hearing there yesterday. Burke, the fireman who was injured in the wreck, died yesterday, and the feeling was so strong that mob violence was threatened.

At Windfall several thousand people met the train but no demonstration was made. The prisoners waived a preliminary hearing and were bound over under the charge of murder in the first degree. The feeling is so strong among the railroad men that the prisoners will be removed to Indianapolis for safe keeping.

ORTH STEIN.

The Youth is Now in the Role of a Forger.

St. Louis, June 15.—Orth Stein, a Globe-Democrat reporter, disappeared last Friday without giving his friends due notice, and it now appears that he left a lot of bogus checks behind to pay his debts with. He came here during the strike and at once took a leading position among the reportorial workers. He had a woman with him whom he introduced as his wife, and with whom he lived in a fashionable boarding house in the west end. When the time for paying his board came he paid it with a check on H. M. Hoxie, general manager of the Gould railroads, representing that Mr. Hoxie owed him $300 for making his strike reports favorable to the railroads. He also raised $50 on a forged draft on a New York bank, which he said was a payment for work done for a press bureau, and paid a bill at the Laclede hotel with a worthless check for $50. This is the same Stein who shot and killed a man at Kansas City when he was city editor of the Star, and who has also made unenviable reputations in Chicago and Lafayette, Ind., where he ran an illustrated paper called the Comet and who robbed his mother of nearly $5,000.

BIG MONEY

For the Knights of Labor on the Gould Lines.

St. Louis, Mo., June 15.—A prominent Knight of Labor at New York is at St. Louis distributing funds to the unemployed Gould line strikers. He has already disbursed $10,000, and his work in this line is not more than half accomplished. A local assembly of servant girls, under the banner of the Knights, is being formed at St. Louis.

Hon. A. P. Edgerton is in the city. He denies emphatically that he anticipates resigning his place on the civil service commission.

Sheriff Nelson is en route to Kansas City after S. Elwood Gross, the thieving dry goods clerk, said to be there.

A NEWSPAPER in Maine quotes some reports of "deestrick-school" committeemen, which read like those of a half century ago. One such is: "Miss Abrams did not allow the children to make any noise, and made but little herself, moving her pupils around as old Dea Drinkwater did her oxen—by the snap of her finger." Another school "made fair progress, some scholars getting ahead of their own accord, and others being dragged along. Strap-oil properly applied might have helped the matter." "Birch oil" is the lubricant which "made things run smooth" at another school.

MONROEVILLE.

The News and Gossip of That Village in Itacy Style.

Prof Walker will spend a few weeks in the southern part of Ohio.

The many friends of Miss Argo will be sad to learn that she has been very sick last week, but we learn that she is now getting better.

Miss Kittie Miller, the accomplished daughter of Rev. Miller, is convalescence.

There were quite a number of drunks in town last Saturday, the consequence of too much free beer given at the expense of the Empire Binder company.

Last Saturday was a day of all days, which kept our reporter busy hopping about from place to place. The Decatur base ball club came here and so completely done our boys that we would advise the players to practice with their mother's yarn ball for the next couple of weeks.

Last Friday evening an open air exhibition was given at the Krouse school house by the pupils of the school under the management of the teacher, Mr. John Buchanan.

Last Saturday was a gala day in Monroeville. The Empire Binder company had their grand "blow off" here, where two car loads of their machines were unloaded and distributed among the farmers of this vicinity. About noon the farmers repaired to the Central hotel, where a free dinner was given them, and later repaired to Krick's saloon, where their gratifications were filled with free beer. About 4 o'clock they formed into line on South street, and headed by the ladies' band, which had just returned from the picnic, paraded the streets for about three quarters of an hour. There were about thirty machines in the line. A number of teachers from this place are making preparations with an intention of attending the Allen county Normal institute which will be held at the M. E. college in Fort Wayne, beginning July 26 and continuing six weeks. The last week of the normal will be held in the circuit room, at which time the county institute will take place. The normal will be under the supervision of the county superintendent.

The citizens of this place are taking no steps toward making preparation to celebrate the Fourth of July. Joson Riley, while grinding corn with a corn crusher had one of his fingers caught in the machine and it was so badly hurt that amputation was necessary. Mrs. H. Miner died at her residence, three miles east of this place, last Thursday. Mrs. Miner has been on the sick list for some time, and death was not surprising to her many friends who survive her. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Douglas at the Lutheran church, Friday at 10 o'clock. The departed lady rests in the Masonic cemetery.

The school picnic last Saturday, given by the pupils in school district No. 1 in Madison township was a grand success, and all those present report having had a splendid time. The Monroeville ladies band was present and rendered excellent music. The band, though not one year since its organization, can play admirably, which promises a bright future for the ladies, and will hereafter be the leading attraction on public occasions. The day was spent in a beautiful maple grove near the school, where an entertainment was given by the pupils from a stage erected for the occasion. In the afternoon, after having partaken of refreshments, Mr. M. E. Argo was introduced, who spoke, at length, on the subject of "The Necessity and Advantage of an Education." Mr. Argo compared our public school system with those of other states and countries, and showed the advantages that the children of the present day have compared with those of twenty years ago in securing a free and liberal education. Mr. Argo also highly praised our county school system, which reflects great credit upon our worthy county superintendent, in raising the standard of our schools twenty per cent in one year. In fact, the oration of Mr. Argo was a perfect masterpiece.

After Mr. Argo's address, Rev. S. D. Miller was introduced, who spoke on the same subject, and highly entertained his hearers in his pleasing and usual style of delivering a lecture, which received comment. The reverend gentleman pointed out some of the duties of the teacher toward the school and the parents and pupils toward the teacher. Rev. Miller stands one among the best teachers in the county, having taught off and on ever since he was sixteen years of age, and therefore he spoke from experience.

PAIN OF LIGHT.

PRAYER WON.

Miss Jessie Crawford, a Former M. E. College Student, Miraculously Healed by Prayer.

Miss Jessie Crawford was a student at the Methodist Episcopal college a few years. She was a bright-eyed studious lass and led in her class, graduating two years ago with the highest honors. The school friends and Fort Wayne people whom she met loved the amiable girl and the future was so bright for her. She returned to her home, Talons, Ill., where her parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Crawford, wealthy people, live. A severe illness seized Miss Jessie. It assumed a dangerous character, but failed to conquer her splendid constitution, and for two long and weary years she fought off the grim monster. There appeared to be absolutely no hope for her recovery. So emaciated did she become that she resembled more a skeleton than a live person. Every week of the two years it appeared as if she could not survive the next. Wealth provided every comfort and luxury; loving friends rendered every service in their power. But careful nursing and the eminent medical skill, failed to rally the patient or to inspire any hope of recovery. In this extremity the white-haired father decided to put to a severe and practical test the faith which in his younger days he had proclaimed from the pulpit, and which since had been his comfort and consolation. He called in the good Christian people of the neighborhood and told them that if ever prayers were needed they were then. They prayed—the father, the mother and the friends. Prayers more earnest than those which ascended from the Crawford dwelling were seldom uttered from human souls. In the midst of their supplications Miss Jessie arose from the bed, which for two years she had not left alone, and stated that she was well. Then there was weeping for joy, and thanksgiving and praises to the Lord for his goodness and mercy. The fever which had consumed her body and almost blotted out her very life was gone. The awful pains which so long had refused to give her rest, no longer racked the wasted frame. The disease was banished in an instant. Miss Crawford appeared with the family at church Sunday morning, a mere shadow of her former self, but she declares that she is well and believes that her cure is permanent.

THE TELEPHONE.

Superintendent Hockett Says the New System of Agencies Will be Introduced

An Indianapolis News reporter yesterday made inquiry of Superintendent Hockett, of the telephone company, as to how their new system of making agents of every subscriber and charging in accordance with the number of connections, was working in the cities in which it had been introduced. "Very satisfactory to both parties," was the reply. "It is now in partial operation in Terre Haute, Fort Wayne, Lafayette and Richmond among those subscribers whose instruments had previously been taken out at the expiration of their old contracts. After the 1st of July, when all the contracts expire, the system will come into general use in all these places. Thus far it has proven popular, and practically all the subscribers have adopted it."

"How does the compensation to the company compare with the former rates?" "From the accounts that we have kept thus far, we think it will average somewhat less than we expected, and less than $5 a month, the old rate. The great advantage of it is that it shuts off dead heads and 'foulness,' which, in this city, I think amounts to fully one-third, and possibly one-half of all the connections called for."

Mr. Joseph K. Skelly, of McKeesport, Pa., is the guest of friends here.

Freddie Racine, son of Councilman F. L. Racine, died last night at 7 o'clock of heart disease. The funeral will take place to-morrow at 2 o'clock, from the Berry street M. E. church. The funeral starts from No. 34 North Cass street.

Mr. Sam. F. Nirdlinger, accompanied by his wife and children, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Charles Nathan. Mr. Nirdlinger is known in amusement circles as Samuel F. Nixon, of the firm of Nixon & Zimmerman, proprietors of the Chestnut street theatre, Philadelphia.

Miss Ida Orff is visiting friends in the east and will be absent all summer.

Mrs. John Mohr and Miss Mamie DeWald leave to-morrow for Dayton, Ohio, to visit Miss Fink and Mrs. Frank Gocke their friends.

CLUBS!

Used By Bloodthirsty Girls,

To Beat to Death their Aged Benefactors for the Sole Purpose of Robbery.

The Town of Vancouver is Burned Down and Its People Cremated.

UNGRATEFUL GIRLS.

They Murder For Money People Who Reared Them.

WASHINGTON, June 15.—Details of an almost unprecedented attempt at double murder by two young girls, the oldest only eighteen, the second hardly in her teens, has been received from Fredericksburg. The victims were Mr. W. E. S. Waller, an old gentleman 65 years of age, and his sister, Miss Jane Waller. Mary and Jennie Green, sisters, were the assassins.

The Wallers lived on a farm twenty-five miles from Fredericksburg, near New Market, somewhat remote from neighbors. The two Green girls had been reared by the Waller family. Last Friday Mr. Waller received quite a sum of money, which he kept in his room and the girls were aware of the fact. About 11 o'clock that night, they beat both of the old people with clubs, until they supposed they were dead. Then they secured about $350 in money and fled. Waller was restored to consciousness and though in a very precarious condition, he was able to describe the occurrence. Mrs. Waller cannot recover.

VANCOUVER.

The Town and Half of Its People Burned Up.

NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C., June 15.—The city of Vancouver, situated at the Pacific end of the Canadian Pacific railway, is in ashes. Not a half-dozen houses remain out of 500, and the worst of all there is a large loss of life. Ten bodies have been recovered. A number of persons are missing, and are supposed to have perished. One short hour did the whole work.

Hundreds of people are camped out. There are meagre facilities for the relief of the sufferers. One man was found in a well, where he had lowered himself to escape the flames. Few of the people have more than the clothes upon them. Most of the burned frame buildings will be replaced with brick structures.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOLS.

An Interesting Session in the First Presbyterian Church.

The annual meeting of the Allen County Sunday School union commenced its labors yesterday evening in the First Presbyterian church. Rev. T. J. Baehner opened the meeting by devotional exercises and Rev. D. C. Woolpert, of the Berry street M. E. church, followed by an interesting address on "The Ideal Sunday School Worker."

TO-DAY'S SESSION.

The convention was opened this morning by President Cromwell, and devotional exercises were led by Rev. Brown, of the Wayne street M. E. church. "The Sunday School Library; its use and Abuse" was then taken up by Dr. Pond, who handled the subject in a very interesting manner. He was followed by a general discussion on the subject by delegates from different parts of the county. Mr. Stuart made a good talk on "More Sunday Schools Needed." Lunch was served in the building and a general good time enjoyed by all present. Messrs. Northrop, Yocum and Kennedy are doing the speaking. This evening Mr. Pond, state superintendent, and a very interesting speaker, will address the convention on "How to make our Sunday schools more successful." It is to be hoped that every Sunday school worker and scholar in the city will be present. Mrs. Judge Lowry will play the new organ at the evening session. All are cordially invited.

The News That is Culled for the "Sentinel" Readers.

The city debt of Logansport was reduced $74,722 last year.

The skeleton of a full grown man was discovered in digging the drain for G. F. McFarren's new residence in the northeast part of Bluffton. It was about two and a half feet from the surface, and it is supposed to have been buried about forty years ago without a coffin.

He Knew When He Had Enough.

"Yes, I have been up in Northern Michigan teaching school all winter," said a south-bound passenger with long locks on his face, "but I haven't had much fun. It's a tough job, and I don't think I'll go back again. I know when I have enough." The boys up there are a bad lot. I thought I could handle 'em, but the very first day when I stood 'em up in a row for a lesson in spelling something astonishing happened. Little streams of black stuff began to come down on me from the direction of the ceiling. On making an investigation I found it was ink, but for a long time I couldn't tell where it came from. Soon I was black and stained from head to foot, and the spelling book which I held in my hand was so daubed up I could hardly read a word out of it. Where do you suppose those streams came from? From little holes about as big as a pin bored between the incisors of those boys. They would take a mouthful of ink, put on the pressure with their tongues and cheeks, and shoot out a stream that would fly thirty feet as straight as a die. They broke up that spelling lesson, and the worst of it was I couldn't get back at them, because I never could tell which boy was the offender. Those chaps had bored those holes on purpose, and they had more fun than you can shake a stick at. But it was rough on me. After having my complexion and four suits of clothes spoiled I got mad and attempted to thrash every boy who had ink-stains on his lips. That was where I got these scars. How? Why, from finger-nails. The boys had let their nails grow an inch long, turned them under into claws, and sharpened the ends to a fine point. They could scratch like wild cats with 'em, and it is a wonder I got off with my life. But I did, and taught that school through the whole winter term, just the same. How? By wearing a sheet-iron mask over my face and a gum-coat on my back, carrying two revolvers in my belt, and keeping a constable in the ante-room. Don't think I'll take the job next winter, though. I'm no hog."—Chicago Herald.

A NEW movement has been inaugurated in New York and vicinity which promises important results. It is called "The King's Daughters." The first band was organized in January. Several ladies met and decided to organize a sisterhood of service to consist of various bands of ten, under the general title of "The King's Daughters." Already over one hundred separate "Tens" have been formed in New York, and at least one-quarter of that number in Brooklyn. These earnest, zealous women are engaged in the Master's field, caring for and clothing the needy, modest poor, ministering to the sick, and endeavoring to find employment for those out of service. In this manner they reach many whom the churches fail to unearth, finding a particularly fruitful harvest among their modest, shrinking, and quietly suffering sisters.

Mr. JOHN R. BRANTLEY, of Douglasville, Ga., with creditable brotherly feelings, comes to his sister's rescue in the following card in the village paper: "Certain unscrupulous women who have no regard for truth have, with a view to injuring my sister's business, circulated a report that she is 'stuck up,' and does not respect country people. This is a false and malicious representation, whose author is as deceitful as she is ugly. My sister especially solicits the patronage of people who live in the country, and I guarantee that she will give them every attention and courtesy."

She Was a Little Old-Fashioned.

"Who is that lady?" "Oh, that is Gen. Blank's wife." "That can't be. She just whispered in his ear and then the two exchanged a smile." "Oh, but you must know that she was originally a country girl and a little old-fashioned in her ways."—Boston Transcript.

WILD SHOTS.

An Editor Perforated at Kansas City.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 15.—In a street-car here last evening, W. A. Carlisle, an attorney, shot Dr. Morrison Munford, proprietor of the Times, and also fired a second bullet, which inflicted a painful wound upon a young woman, Carlisle then jumped from the car and fired at the doctor through the window, the bullet hitting a male passenger in the face making a dangerous wound. The would-be murderer then ran off, but was speedily captured. Dr. Munford is not seriously hurt. The shooting grew out of charges preferred by the Times against Carlisle.

The Puritan Leads From the Start

FORT HAMILTON, N. Y., June 15.—In the yacht race the Puritan passed here ahead of the other big sloops at 11:05 a. m., the Priscilla at 11:09 and the Atlantic at 11:32. The Puritan has gained in the lead from the start.

At Sandy Hook the Priscilla ran away from the rest of the sloops. The races will finish at 6 p. m.

Congress To-day.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 15.—The senate took up the Northern Pacific forfeiture bill and the house the legislative appropriation bill after a few issues were discussed.

The police force of Jeffersonville, are now uniformed.

M. LOUVIER, an architect of Lyons, refers favorably to the extensive use of clinkers for foundation work in that city and neighborhood. The cost of these clinkers is stated to be about $2.50 per cubic yard, and a small quantity of common or hydraulic lime is mixed with them before using, the mixture being then wetted and rammed in layers. When arches or vaults are formed of this kind of concrete, care is necessary not to place the layers of material parallel to the surface of the ground or the curve of the centering, but to ram the layers in such a manner as will consolidate them vertically to the curve of the intrados. In this way all risk of shaking out any of the material is avoided.

The will of the late Thaddeus F. Stuart, of Burlington, Vt., bequeaths $200 in trust to the Vermont Methodist Conference. The will provides that at each annual session of the conference one of its members shall be appointed to visit the grave of the deceased the first Sunday in June, and there "preach a full and free salvation to all that may attend to hear." The minister appointed is to give timely notice to the churches of the hour this sermon will be preached, and is to receive $10 for his services, the interest on the $200 to be used for that purpose.

THERE is a large-sized unpleasantness in a church that does or rather did exist at Oconee, Georgia. The members were living together harmoniously and owned a neat church. Alas! was peaceful till the preacher and deacons started to arguing the prohibition question, and then the parson got so mad that he turned all out of church who disagreed with him. Then the deposed deacons, not to be outdone, went to the church, turned the parson out, and locked the doors. Now there is a dearth of ecclesiastical instruction in that town.

THE SENTINEL

Lafayette, Ind., shares with twenty-three other cities and towns in the United States, the distinction of being named after the great French patriot who did so much for this country and his own, but it is alone in the honor of being mentioned in the Encyclopedia Britannica. Life in the lively pushing city on the Wabash, with its many cozy homes, fine public buildings and general air of prosperity and enterprise, is very pleasant, and recently many of its citizens feel that it has assumed new charms since rheumatism has been robbed of its terrors.

This great benefactor, however, is not one which rejoices this particular Lafayette alone, but it has been given to other cities as well, and to the world. Athlaphoros is the magic remedy which drives away rheumatism and neuralgia, and Lafayette has only shown its characteristic enterprise in recognizing the new cure's many virtues. It was again recommended to me by a lady, I then sent for and bought a bottle. I took a dose, and it seemed to me as if I could feel it go through my system until it came directly to the sore spot. It felt just as a little stream of water looks when during its course it comes in contact with a pebble. One or the other must give way. The water may run around the stone, but that was not the way Athlaphoros did. It did not go around the pain, but drove it away. The relief was almost instantaneous. While I am getting along in years and cannot expect to get rid entirely of these pains at once, yet a small dose of Athlaphoros in a little cream—the way in which I find most pleasant to take it—relieves the pain immediately.

Mr. Baldrige, who is in the real estate and insurance business at No. 94 South Third street, and who lives at No. 17 North Sixth street, happened to be passing while Mrs. Heath was speaking, he called him in and he gladly told how he had been cured of rheumatism by Athlaphoros.

"I was just about to start down to my office one morning, when winter," he said, "when a terrible pain took me right in the hip and then ran down the sciatic nerve as quick as lightning. It was with much pain and distress that I managed to get down to my office at all. My business being such that it was necessary for me to be at the office every day, I was obliged to hobble along and get there the best I could. I suffered for some time in this way, trying all kinds of remedies, but nothing seemed to check the disease until I commenced using Athlaphoros. The first four doses gave me relief. I only used one bottle, and am perfectly well, as you see me now. I have never had any return of the pain since I took the Athlaphoros."

If you cannot get ATHLAPHOROS of your druggist, we will send it express paid, on receipt of regular price—one dollar. Be sure that you buy it from your druggist, but if he hasn't it, do not be persuaded to try something else, but order at once from us, as directed. ATHLAPHOROS CO., 15 Wall Street, New York.

A POET-LAWYER.

William Washburn and His Love of Letters.

[Special Correspondence.]
New York, June 13.—Men of the law are sure to have literary tastes if not talents. Among the professions, next to theology, law is secondarily a literary profession. Men who pursue science in the exact, or alleged exact, forms read only in their own domain. They are apt to be generalists toward the practical and get further and further away from the ideal. Men of the law, however, frequently take to the poetical. They have use for it as a garnish for their heavy facts and ponderous opinions, and they learn to be fond of it, if not so by nature.

William Washburn, whose portrait accompanies this sketch, is one of the lawyers of New York who, while in the practice of law, loves letters. He wrote a novel entitled "A Fair Harvard," when fresh from college, which was his first literary effort. The "Unknown City," said city, had no other existence to him. In truth, when it comes to poetry Mr. Washburn is at once on delectable ground. He would rather write poetry, talk poetry and read poetry than do anything else in the world. To him there is no joy equal to the construction of choriambic verse.

He is also well known as a newspaper writer. He has written some of the brightest things in John Swanton's Paper, and his contributions to the newspapers of the country, through the different syndicates, have made him known to a large circle of readers.

He is a native of Marlboro, Mass., and a graduate of Harvard, yet thoroughly western in many respects. He is a good lawyer, a good teller, a good writer, a good reader, and quite good looking and also one of the best bred men in the world. He is a close student of life. He knows New York and its many interesting phases better than any man not a newspaper reporter. His stories of New York life are true transcripts from nature.

Unlike a large proportion of the rhythmic guild, Mr. Washburn is extremely modest about his achievements. He has a sunny, kindly nature, and is a great favorite with the literary people of this city. C. S. R.

THE AGE OF MATERNITY PASSING.

The "new world" rediscovered by Columbus is a small affair as compared with the one lying at our very doors, and into which we unconsciously enter every night. We look with the eye of the body across our rooms, our streets, our fields, saying there is nothing between us and the walls, the house, the forest, the mountain, the sea. No one is using that space may be crowded with structures, with people, with the unseen copies of all we see about us.

The age for materiality to crush out spiritual truth has passed. The age wherein spiritual truth shall assert itself and rule materiality has in reality commenced. It matters not how small is the apparent nucleus or group of persons, all that is needed is a pinhole can reveal a vast landscape. The point of contact where the rope is made fast to the ship to pull her off the shoal is but a few inches wide, but that is all the space required to bring the force to bear on the vessel, and so the relative few who can now receive these truths will be the power to raise the many upward.—Preston Mulford.

AN ARIZONA EDITOR recently sent postal cards to all the prominent citizens of the place requesting them to give an answer to the question, Why are you an honest man? Some of the replies which he publishes are curious. One answers: "It must be because of my damned cussedness; I always did like to be different from other people." Another says that he is honest because he has never held any public office. Another indignantly answers, "What d'ye take me for—an angel?" Another sarcastically remarks, "I suppose you're going to start a museum and are looking for freaks. Well, count me out; I'm not one." Another, a professional labor agitator, wrote in blooded ink, on a postal card, "What are ye givin' us?" While the editor of the opposition paper volunteered the answer that he scorned to lay bare the palpitating mainspring of a noble and honest soul at the request of a dishonest reptile and political parasite. The editor is so well pleased with the results of his inquiry that he intends soon to ask for answers to the question, What do you take for a cold?

THE EDUCATIONAL BILL submitted by Representative Miller, of Texas, provides for an annual appropriation of $8,000,000 for ten years, the money to be distributed among the States in the ratio of their illiteracy as shown by the census reports.

SCOTT'S EMULSION OF PURE

Cod Liver Oil, With Hypophosphates, As a Remedy for Pulmonary Affections and Scrofulous Diseases.

Dr. I. M. LANG—A prominent physician in New York says:—I am greatly pleased with your Emulsion. I have found it very serviceable in above diseases, and it is easily administered on account of its palatableness.

A BROOKLYN dentist, against whom a suit for damages in the sum of $50,000 was brought by a woman whose mouth got sore after using a set of teeth he had constructed for her, has settled the case with her by a payment of $300.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.

When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.

When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.

When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

They are Not sorry.

There is one thing nobody ever regrets—that is, the day they first adopted Parker's Tonic as their regular family medicine. Its range is so wide, and its good effects so sure, that nothing else, except good nursing, are needed in a great majority of cases. Buy it, try it, and afterwards it will not require any praise from us.

WEAK, NERVOUS AND DEBILITATED MEN
Seeking health, strength and energy should avoid all drugs, secret medicines, etc., and send for "The Review," or "Health and Strength Regained," a large illustrated journal published entirely for their benefit. It treats on health, hygiene, physical culture, and medical subjects, and is a complete encyclopedia of information for suffering humanity afflicted with long standing, chronic, nervous, exhausting and painful diseases. YOUNG AND MIDDLE AGED MEN, and others who suffer from nervous and physical debility, exhausted vitality, premature decline, etc., are especially benefited by consulting its contents. Everything such sufferers wish to know is fully given in its pages. If in need of medical aid or counsel read it before "doctoring" or investing in medicines or appliances of any description and you will save time, money and disappointment. If using medicine or medical treatment of any kind, read it and learn the better way.

HEALTH AND STRENGTH REGAINED.
THE REVIEW exposes the frauds practised by quacks and impostors who profess to "practice medicine," and points out the only safe, simple and effective road to health, vigor and bodily energy. Electric belts and all curative appliances are treated upon; all about them—which are genuine, which are bogus. Belts on thirty days' trial (7) and other failures are exposed. Thousands of dollars saved nervous debility sufferers and others by the advice given. THE REVIEW is now in its fifth year of publication. Complete specimen copies mailed FREE. MRS. CLEVELAND'S HOME.

THE DOMESTIC QUARTERS OF THE GREAT WHITE HOUSE.

Gossip About Mrs. Cleveland and Her Daily Life—How and Where She Lives. The First Lady of the Land and Her Duties.

(Special Correspondence.)
WASHINGTON, June 13.—The White House seems to fit Mrs. Cleveland as though it was made for her. She is liked by the servants, is loved by Washington society, and her little ears hear nothing but praise. She and the president are very loving, and their honeymoon is passing without a cloud, as far as can be seen, in the matrimonial sky. She is greatly interested in the country home, and she finds the White House not unpleasant. The quarters of the president's wife are far different from those of the president. The public knows all about the latter. It knows very little about the former. Mrs. Cleveland is now the head of the White House, and she has the entire control of its arrangements. President Cleveland was never a man of much domestic taste. He has not been in the basement of the White House more than once since the day of his inauguration, and he never goes down to the kitchen as President Arthur did, to have a word with the cook, or to direct the getting up of his dinners. President Cleveland has confined himself strictly to his office and his bedroom, and he has spent no more time in the other apartments than through the White House was a great hotel, and he was living in it.

The White House is, after all, much like a hotel. The president's family have only about one-third of it as their private quarters, and the public trot around through the remaining two-thirds all the time. The house has cost about $2,000,000 and it is a big, old-fashioned structure with lots of waste room. The ceilings of the ground floor are thirty-two feet high, and the front vestibule and hall with its glass wall and marble floor is as cold as a barn and about as dreary. A half dozen messengers are always present in it, and it looks more like an entrance to an art gallery than to the private quarters of the ruler of the great republic. The East room would make a very nice ball room but it is of no earthly good except for grand receptions, and one might as well try to make a living room of a two acre field as of it. Besides it is thrown open to visitors until 2 o'clock every day. Its chairs always stand back against the wall as though they were chained there, and the big chandeliers which light it, though they cost $5,000 apiece, look like icebergs with their hundreds of prismatic, crystal pendants, and freeze the life out of any two, three, or half dozen people assembled below them. The Blue room, the Green room and the Red room are nice enough, but they lack the home touches of bits of bric-a-brac, tidies and the thousand and one little nothings which make up home comforts. They are pretty enough and grand enough, but one feels as though he ought to see that his hair was kept straight, while he sits in them, and it is hard to feel comfortable amid such surroundings. The result is that these rooms have never been home like ones, and the real home of the president is confined to the second story.

The east side of the second story of the White House is made up of offices. President Cleveland holds his cabinet meetings where Abe Lincoln used to sleep during war times, and he has for his private office, where he receives his business callers, the oval library which Fillmore's wife arranged and which formed the reception room. I think, of Abigail Adams. The White House had not been half finished when John Adams came into it, and his wife did most of her entertaining on the second floor. The East room was a great, bare, uncarpeted place, and Mrs. Cleveland was very much amused the other day when one of the attaches of the White House told her that it was here that Mrs. Adams hung out her clothes on rainy wash days.

Col. Lamont has one of the biggest rooms in the White House. It is just over the East room, and is the one in which Abraham Lincoln used to receive his callers during the war. There are four other rooms beside these in this part of the White House which are used for offices. One of these is devoted to the bookkeeping of the president's mission; another has a telegraph operator, a type writer and files of the leading newspapers of the country, and a third is a big waiting room, where callers are sometimes shown who wish to see the president. All these rooms are shut off from Mrs. Cleveland. She could come into them if she wished, but she does not do so. She has been several times into the president's private office, fingering over the books in the library, and taking now and then, one to her own room in another part of the house, but even these visits have been made when the president was alone.

If you could take a mammoth knife and cut the White House as you would a big cheese, you could, by drawing the blade across it from north to south at the end of the library, cut off Mrs. Cleveland's part of the White House from that of the president. She has five bed rooms, and they are all large and airy. Just off from the library there is a cozy room which used to be known as the girls' room, and it was in this that Nellie Grant lived, and Nellie Arthur occupied it during the last presidential term. The president's bedroom is the state bedroom, and I can tell you it looks different now to what it did when Mrs. Cleveland first came into it. There are more home touches, and the dressing table always has its flowers. When President Arthur was here he had his wife's picture, which hung on one of these walls, wreathed with roses every morning. Now the roses are everywhere about the room and the gardener has done his best to make it look beautiful. There is a wide lounge, or divan, at one side of the room, and the bed is of rosewood with a great canopy of silk brocade in gold and silver above it. A rich Turkish carpet covers the floor and there are a number of easy chairs scattered about the room. Great chunks of wood lie upon the highly polished brass andirons, and the mantel is covered with a heavy velvet cloth of a soft, dark red. There is a tidy on one of the arm chairs bearing the inscription in red, white and blue silk:

"God bless our country and our president."

I wonder if Mrs. Cleveland made it and whether, if she did not, she is jealous of the woman who did. Everything matches here in this room, but the toilet table looks far different now from what it did six weeks ago. It was in this room that the Prince of Wales slept when he visited this country, and if Victoria died soon enough the bridal chamber of President Cleveland will have been the only guest chamber in the United States that has slept a king.

Miss Cleveland's old room looks out upon the Potomac, and it may be that this will in time become the president's chamber. It is one of the most beautiful rooms in the house, and its furniture is made in imitation of bamboo with joints corresponding to those of a fishing rod. The chief objection to this room is the fact that the gardener lay here while he was sick, and one might fear that his ghost would visit its future occupants.

Mrs. Cleveland uses as her guest chamber the room at the southwest corner of the White House. It is a very pleasant room and it contains the only specimens of antique bedroom furniture in the executive mansion. The bed is a four-poster, and over it is an old fashioned canopy with silver hangings. The bed is so high that it takes a step ladder to get into it and there is a little one here for that purpose. The corridor which runs through the center of the White House from east to west is shut off just west of the library by a partition, so that between the bedrooms makes a very nice sitting room. This is luxuriously furnished and has a window looking out on the state, war and navy department and giving a view of Arlington and the Virginia hills.

There is an elevator that leads from the first to the second story of the White House, though very few people have ever seen it. It is a small affair nicely fitted up, and Mrs. Cleveland goes up in this very often in preference to the public stairway. The kitchen of the White House is situated on the north side. It has rooms big enough for a parlor, and its ranges are large enough to roast an ox whole. There is a big pastry table in the cook room which would do for the counter of an auction house, and the cooking utensils are of copper; and as they hang on the white walls they shine so that you can see your face looking out of them. Hickory firewood is used in the grates of the White House, and great piles of it are stacked up in the halls of the basement. It is very clean throughout, this lower part of the White House. Everything is scoured and scrubbed as though the place was presided over by a Dutch housewife; and as you look at the floors and tables you might imagine yourself to be in Holland. The stonework was whitewashed some time ago, and the whole, with its heavy columns and its massive walls several feet thick, make one think of the lower part of Ben Butler building, a mile away on the hill.

There is a steam engine in this White House basement, and Mrs. Cleveland was interested when she was told that here, in this engine room, was the kitchen of Andrew Jackson. She looked at the twelve-foot fireplace, which still stands in it with its crane of iron, and she noted the mouth of the Dutch oven, in which the baking of the White House was then done. The laundry of the White House is in the front part of the basement, and as you walk up to call upon the president, through the windows that open upwards you can, if you will glance down, see colored girls with caps on their heads ironing numerous garments, the names of which I would not like to mention here. The steward has an office down here, and so has the gardener, and there are some sleeping rooms for the servants, but the most of the household is at the house. There is a dumb waiter leading from the kitchen to the second floor.

The family now take their meals in the private dining room, and the colored waiters wear swallow tail coats and white vests and black trousers when they wait upon them. Flowers are always upon the table, and when Mrs. Cleveland has any guests the gardener of the White House sees that flowers are put in their chambers every day.

Mrs. Cleveland is fond of flowers, and she spends some time in the conservatory daily. The flowers used at the wedding, if they had been bought outside of the White House, would have cost several thousand dollars, and $50 worth of flowers are used at the White House daily. In these conservatories of the White House there are about $100,000 worth of flowers, and some of the plants are so rare and valuable as to be worth $1,000 apiece.

Miss Cleveland's favorite flower was the rose. Mrs. Hayes adored the moss geranium. Mrs. Garfield went wild about orchids, and President Arthur did not consider himself dressed until he had a red rose in his buttonhole. I am told that Mrs. Cleveland is fond of all kinds of flowers, but that the president had never worn a buttonhole bouquet. It may be that his record in the future will be the same as that of Ben Butler, who paid no attention to flowers until his wife, after their marriage, pinned one every day upon his coat, and now you never see old Ben without them.

Mrs. Cleveland is the first lady of the land. This vexed question of Washington society has been settled. For the past five years we have been torn up here at Washington as to who was our social head. The wives of our supreme judges, of our cabinet ministers, of our senators and of our presidents pro tem, have been bobbing their heads violently in claiming the right to the position. Even Mrs. McElroy and Miss Cleveland had, in the minds of some, a questionable title, and Mrs. Carlisle and Mrs. Sherman were thought by some to outrank them.

Mrs. Frank Cleveland is, beyond doubt, our social queen, and a new regime may commence with her reign. She will sit at the head of the president's dinner table, and Mrs. Winney, the Bayris, and the Endicotts will shine from now on only by her reflected light. Mrs. Winney may continue to give dinners and lunches at the rate of $5,000 or more apiece, and she will still be popular, but she will be nothing in comparison with the lady of the White House.

Mrs. Cleveland's duties though they are pleasant are not the easiest ones. She has to act so as to keep the president and herself popular in society. She must never have a quarrel with any one, and she will have to guard carefully that the politicians do not work upon the president through her by the medium of their wives. She will have to hold receptions, and at these her arm will grow tired, and she will feel ready to sink through the floor before the hand shaking ends. At Miss Cleveland's last reception nearly 4,000 people shook hands with her, and her right arm was kept in continuous motion, trying to convey bits in succession. When the president gives a reception Mrs. Cleveland will stand by his side and have her hand squeezed by all who go by. Some strong men will press it so hard as to almost bring tears to her eyes, but she must smile, think it nice and make a pleasant remark as they go onward. She will find some pleasant things at the state receptions, and though she will hear more of praise than of anything else, there will now and then be a man using words by any clique, and she will have to guard carefully that the politicians do not work upon the president through her by the medium of their wives. At Miss Cleveland's last reception nearly 4,000 people shook hands with her, and her right arm was kept in continuous motion, trying to convey bits in succession. When the president gives a reception Mrs. Cleveland will stand by his side and have her hand squeezed by all who go by. Some strong men will press it so hard as to almost bring tears to her eyes, but she must smile, think it nice and make a pleasant remark as they go onward. TWO DEATHS.

Hiram Caston and Wm. Close Smothered in a Well.

Hiram Caston was digging a well for Reuben Stahl, on DeWald street. He called Wm. Close, a friend, to assist him in the removal of a stone. Fire damp accumulated in the well in a moment and when Caston was being lowered he fell from the bucket to the bottom. Mr. Close believed his flight was an accident and descended after him. He too was overcome, and before they could be rescued, both men were smothered by the deadly gas. Mr. Caston leaves a wife and four children. Mr. Close leaves a wife, who has three children by a former husband. Dr. J. M. Dinnen, the coroner, held an inquest on both men and pronounced death accidental.

Good Neighbors Gone.

Editor SENTINEL: I noticed in a recent number of THE SENTINEL an account of the death of two of my old neighbors of Adams township, Henry Rhodenbeck and Bernard Preptein (or Prepsing as generally spelled). They were neighbors, and farms joined, both Christians, the former a Lutheran, the latter a Catholic. Both warm hearted, earnest democrats, and died as they lived, without an enemy. They were among my near neighbors and fast friends, all the time I resided at Elm Park, over a quarter of a century, and when the "fortunes of war" was about to remove me from the neighborhood, I received no warmer tokens of regret and sympathy than from these substantial, hard-working farmers, and upright men, who in connection with other kind hearted neighbors, gave such substantial evidence of friendship and material aid (but which I could not accept) that I take this opportunity to give expression to my sorrow, which I know is felt by all their neighbors and acquaintances.

Miss ALICE JORDAN, the young lady student in the Yale Law School, will not be able to obtain the degree of bachelor of law from the university upon her graduation. Professor Dexter being asked, said the matter had not even been considered by the corporation, and added: "The corporation has never granted a degree to a woman, and I don't think it ever will."

How to Tell the Time by Night.

(From the Buffalo, N. Y., "Times.") Perhaps the most ingenious thing in the way of an advertising novelty that has come out for many years, is a unique contrivance issued by the Duffy Malt Whiskey Company, Baltimore, Md., proprietors of Duffy's pure malt whiskey. Unlike most things of the kind, which the country has been deluged heretofore, this is a decided departure from the usual rut, and aside from being one of the most attractive things we have ever seen, it involves a new discovery in science which is both interesting and instructive. So valuable was this discovery regarded it was awarded a first prize gold medal at the Brussels International Exposition, and it seems almost like prostituting science to put it to advertising purposes as it is something that is invaluable to institutions of learning, and would readily command a good price if put on sale. However, the Duffy people, appreciating its importance, have gotten it out in the highest artistic style, such as will secure for it a permanent place in every house in the country.

The device is called Duffy's Ancient Mariner's Stellar Time-Piece, its object being to furnish a guide whereby the correct time may be ascertained at any hour of the night, by observation of the North Star and three other bright stars near it, the four stars forming a Cross or Crucifix, which revolves round the celestial pole like the hands of a clock. By the aid of the Duffy's device, which represents a miniature firmament and tabular dial, the time can be ascertained almost to the minute which is destined to render it invaluable to Mariners, Hunters, Fishermen and to the masses generally, as after a little practice, even a child will be able to tell the time at night.

Although the device is quite an expensive one, the proprietors intend distributing it free and in time every body in the country will have one. Requests for same by mail, must be accompanied by six cents in postage stamps addressed to their Supply Department, as already they are flooded with applications.

DANGER!

Attends the Pan Handle Train Wreckers.

Fireman Burke, Their Victim, Dies and the Trio Held for Murder in the First Degree.

Orth Stein, of Lafayette, Turns up a Slick Forger at St. Louis.

FEAR LYING.

Train Wreckers Held for Murder

LOGANSPOUT, Ind., June 15.—Vice, Justice and Berry, the three train wreckers, who sent a Pan Handle passenger train into a ditch, at Windfall, three weeks ago, were given a preliminary hearing there yesterday. Burke, the fireman who was injured in the wreck, died yesterday, and the feeling was so strong that mob violence was threatened.

At Windfall several thousand people met the train but no demonstration was made. The prisoners waived a preliminary hearing and were bound over under the charge of murder in the first degree. The feeling is so strong among the railroad men that the prisoners will be removed to Indianapolis for safe keeping.

ORTH STEIN.

The Youth is Now in the Role of a Forger.

St. Louis, June 15.—Orth Stein, a Globe-Democrat reporter, disappeared last Friday without giving his friends due notice, and it now appears that he left a lot of bogus checks behind to pay his debts with. He came here during the strike and at once took a leading position among the reportorial workers. He had a woman with him whom he introduced as his wife, and with whom he lived in a fashionable boarding house in the west end. When the time for paying his board came he paid it with a check on H. M. Hoxie, general manager of the Gould railroads, representing that Mr. Hoxie owed him $300 for making his strike reports favorable to the railroads. He also raised $50 on a forged draft on a New York bank, which he said was a payment for work done for a press bureau, and paid a bill at the Laclede hotel with a worthless check for $50. This is the same Stein who shot and killed a man at Kansas City when he was city editor of the Star, and who has also made unenviable reputations in Chicago and Lafayette, Ind., where he ran an illustrated paper called the Comet and who robbed his mother of nearly $5,000.

BIG MONEY

For the Knights of Labor on the Gould Lines.

St. Louis, Mo., June 15.—A prominent Knight of Labor at New York is at St. Louis distributing funds to the unemployed Gould line strikers. He has already disbursed $10,000, and his work in this line is not more than half accomplished. A local assembly of servant girls, under the banner of the Knights, is being formed at St. Louis.

Hon. A. P. Edgerton is in the city. He denies emphatically that he anticipates resigning his place on the civil service commission.

Sheriff Nelson is en route to Kansas City after S. Elwood Gross, the thieving drug clerk, said to be there.

A newspaper in Maine quotes some reports of "deatrick-school" committeemen, which read like those of a half century ago. One such is: "Miss Abrams did not allow the children to make any noise, and made but little herself, moving her pupils around as old Dea Drinkwater did her oxen—by the snap of her finger." Another school "made fair progress, some scholars getting ahead of their own accord, and others being dragged along. Strap-oil properly applied might have helped the matter." "Birch oil" is the lubricant which "made things run smooth" at another school.

Prof Walker will spend a few weeks in the southern part of Ohio.

The many friends of Miss Argo will be so glad to learn that she has been very sick last week, but we learn that she is now getting better.

Miss Kittie Miller, the accomplished daughter of Rev. Miller, is convalescing.

There were quite a number of drunks in town last Saturday, the consequence of too much free beer given at the expense of the Empire Binder company.

Last Saturday was a day of all days, which kept our reporter busy hopping about from place to place. The Decatur base ball club came here and so completely done our boys that we would advise the players to practice with their mother's yarn ball for the next couple of weeks.

Last Friday evening an open air exhibition was given at the Krouse school house by the pupils of the school under the management of the teacher, Mr. John Buchanan.

Last Saturday was a gala day in Monroeville. The Empire Binder company had their grand "blow off" here, where two car loads of their machines were unloaded and distributed among the farmers of this vicinity. About noon the farmers repaired to the Central hotel, where a free dinner was given them, and later repaired to Krick's saloon, where their gratifications were filled with free beer. About 4 o'clock they formed into line on South street, and headed by the ladies' band, which had just returned from the picnic, paraded the streets for about three quarters of an hour. There were about thirty machines in the line.

A number of teachers from this place are making preparations with an intention of attending the Allen county Normal institute which will be held at the M. E. college in Fort Wayne, beginning July 26 and continuing six weeks. The last week of the normal will be held in the circuit room, at which time the county institute will take place. The normal will be under the supervision of the county superintendent.

The citizens of this place are taking no steps toward making preparation to celebrate the Fourth of July.

John Riley, while grinding corn with a corn crusher had one of his fingers caught in the machine and it was so badly hurt that amputation was necessary.

Mrs. H. Miner died at her residence, three miles east of this place, last Thursday. Mrs. Miner has been on the sick list for some time, and death was not surprising to her many friends who survive her. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Douglas at the Lutheran church, Friday at 10 o'clock. The departed lady rests in the Masonic cemetery.

The school picnic last Saturday, given by the pupils in school district No. 1 in Madison township was a grand success, and all those present report having had a splendid time. The Monroeville ladies band was present and rendered excellent music. The band, though not one year since its organization, can play admirably, which promises a bright future for the ladies, and will hereafter be the leading attraction on public occasions. The day was spent in a beautiful maple grove near the school, where an entertainment was given by the pupils from a stage erected for the occasion. In the afternoon, after having partaken of refreshments, Mr. M. E. Argo was introduced, who spoke, at length, on the subject of "The Necessity and Advantage of an Education." Mr. Argo compared our public school system with those of other states and countries, and showed the advantages that the children of the present day have compared with those of twenty years ago in securing a free and liberal education. Mr. Argo also highly praised our county school system, which reflects great credit upon our worthy county superintendent, in raising the standard of our schools twenty per cent in one year. In fact, the oration of Mr. Argo was a perfect masterpiece.

After Mr. Argo's address, Rev. S. D. Miller was introduced, who spoke on the same subject, and highly entertained his hearers in his pleasing and usual style of delivering a lecture, which received comment. The reverend gentleman pointed out some of the duties of the teacher toward the school and the parents and pupils toward the teacher. Rev. Miller stands one among the best teachers in the county, having taught off and on ever since he was sixteen years of age, and therefore he spoke from experience.

PRINCE OF LIGHT.

PRAYER WON.

Miss Jessie Crawford, a Former M. E. College Student, Miraculously Healed by Prayer.

Miss Jessie Crawford was a student at the Methodist Episcopal college a few years. She was a bright-eyed studious lass and led in her class, graduating two years ago with the highest honors. The school friends and Fort Wayne people whom she met loved the amiable girl and the future was so bright for her. She returned to her home, Talona, Ill., where her parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Crawford, wealthy people, live. A severe illness seized Miss Jessie. It assumed a dangerous character, but failed to conquer her splendid constitution, and for two long and weary years she fought off the grim monster. There appeared to be absolutely no hope for her recovery. So despondent did she become that she resembled more a skeleton than a live person. Every week of the two years it appeared as if she could not survive the next. Wealth provided every comfort and luxury; loving friends rendered every service in their power. But careful nursing and the eminent medical skill, failed to rally the patient or to inspire any hope of recovery. In this extremity the white-haired father decided to put to a severe and practical test the faith which in his younger days he had proclaimed from the pulpit, and which since had been his comfort and consolation. He called in the good Christian people of the neighborhood and told them that if ever prayers were needed they were then. They prayed—the father, the mother, and the friends. Prayers more earnest than those which ascended from the Crawford dwelling were seldom uttered from human souls. In the midst of their supplications Miss Jessie arose from the bed, which for two years she had not left alone, and stated that she was well. Then there was weeping for joy, and thanksgiving and praise to the Lord for his goodness and mercy. The fever which had consumed her body and almost blotted out her very life was gone. The awful pains which so long had refused to give her rest, no longer racked the wasted frame. The disease was banished in an instant. Miss Crawford appeared with the family at church Sunday morning, a mere shadow of her former self, but she declares that she is well and believes that her cure is permanent.

THE TELEPHONE.

Superintendent Hockett Says the New System of Agencies Will be Introduced

An Indianapolis News reporter yesterday made inquiry of Superintendent Hockett, of the telephone company, as to how their new system of making agents of every subscriber and charging in accordance with the number of connections, was working in the cities in which it had been introduced. "Very satisfactorily to both parties," was the reply. "It is now in partial operation in Terre Haute, Fort Wayne, Lafayette and Richmond among these subscribers whose instruments had previously been taken out at the expiration of their old contracts. After the 1st of July, when all the contracts expire, the system will come into general use in all these places. Thus far it has proven popular, and practically all the subscribers have adopted it."

"How does the compensation to the company compare with the former sales?"

"From the accounts that we have kept thus far, we think it will average somewhat less than we expected, and less than $5 a month, the old rate. The great advantage of it is that it shuts off dead heads and 'foulness,' which, in this city, I think amounts to fully one-third, and possibly one-half of all the connections called for."

Mr. Joseph K. Skelly, of McKeesport, Pa., is the agent of friends here.

Freddie Racine, son of Conneliman F. L. Racine, died last night at 7 o'clock of heart disease. The funeral will take place to-morrow at 2 o'clock, from the Berry street M. E. church. The funeral starts from No. 34 North Cass street.

Mr. Sam. F. Nirdlinger, accompanied by his wife and children, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Charles Nathan. Mr. Nirdlinger is known in amusement circles as Samuel F. Nixon, of the firm of Nixon & Zimmerman, proprietors of the Chestnut street theatre, Philadelphia.

Miss Ida Orff is visiting friends in the east and will be absent all summer.

Mrs. John Mohr and Miss Mamie DeWahl leave to-morrow for Dayton, Ohio, to visit Miss Fink and Mrs. Frank Gocke and their friends.

UNGRATEFUL GIRLS.

They Murder For Money People Who Reared Them.

WASHINGTON, June 15.—Details of an almost unprecedented attempt at double murder by two young girls, the oldest only eighteen, the second hardly in her teens, has been received from Fredericksburg. The victims were Mr. W. E. S. Waller, an old gentleman 65 years of age, and his sister, Miss Jane Waller. Mary and Jennie Green, sisters, were the assailants.

The Wallers lived on a farm twenty-five miles from Fredericksburg, near New Market, somewhat remote from neighbors. The two Green girls had been reared by the Waller family. Last Friday Mr. Waller received quite a sum of money, which he kept in his room and the girls were aware of the fact. About 11 o'clock that night, they beat both of the old people with clubs, until they supposed they were dead. Then they secured about $350 in money and fled. Waller was restored to consciousness and though in a very precarious condition, he was able to describe the occurrence. Mrs. Waller cannot recover.

VANCOUVER.

The Town and Half of Its People Burned Up.

NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C., June 15.—The city of Vancouver, situated at the Pacific end of the Canadian Pacific railway, is in ashes. Not a half-dozen houses remain out of 800, and the worst of all there is a large loss of life. Ten bodies have been recovered. A number of persons are missing, and are supposed to have perished. One short hour did the whole work.

Hundreds of people are camped out. There are meagre facilities for the relief of the sufferers. One man was found in a well, where he had lowered himself to escape the flames. Few of the people have more than the clothes upon them. Most of the burned frame buildings will be replaced with brick structures.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOLS.

An Interesting Session in the First Presbyterian Church.

The annual meeting of the Allen County Sunday School union commenced its labors yesterday evening in the First Presbyterian church. Rev. T. J. Baehler opened the meeting by devotional exercises and Rev. D. C. Woolpert, of the Berry street M. E. church, followed by an interesting address on "The Ideal Sunday School Worker."

TO-DAY'S SESSION.

The convention was opened this morning by President Cromwell, and devotional exercises were led by Rev. Brown, of the Wayne street M. E. church. "The Sunday School Library; its use and Abuse" was then taken up by Dr. Pond, who handled the subject in a very interesting manner. He was followed by a general discussion on the subject by delegates from different parts of the county. Mr. Stuart made a good talk on "More Sunday Schools Needed." Lunch was served in the building and a general good time enjoyed by all present. Messrs. Northrop, Yeom and Kennedy are doing the speaking. This evening Mr. Pond, state superintendent, and a very interesting speaker, will address the convention on "How to make our Sunday schools more successful." It is to be hoped that every Sunday school worker and scholar in the city will be present. Mrs. Judge Lowry will play the new organ at the evening session. All are cordially invited.

He Knew When He Had Enough.

"Yes, I have been up in Northern Michigan teaching school all winter," said a south-bound passenger with long scars on his face, "but I haven't had much fun. It's a tough job, and I don't think I'll go back again. I know when I have enough. The boys up there are a bad lot. I thought I could handle 'em, but the very first day when I stood 'em up in a row for a lesson in spelling something astonishing happened. Little streams of black stuff began to come down on me from the direction of the ceiling. On making an investigation I found it was ink, but for a long time I couldn't tell where it came from. Soon I was black and stained from head to foot, and the spelling book which I held in my hand was so daubed up I could hardly read a word out of it. Where do you suppose those streams came from? From little holes about as big as a pin bored between the incisors of those boys. They would take a mouthful of ink, put on the pressure with their tongues and cheeks, and shoot out a stream that would fly thirty feet as straight as a die. They broke up that spelling lesson, and the worst of it was I couldn't get back at them, because I never could tell which boy was the offender. Those chaps had bored those holes on purpose, and they had more fun than you can shake a stick at. But it was rough on me. After having my complexion and four suits of clothes spoiled I got mad and attempted to thrash every boy who had ink-stains on his lips. That was where I got these scars. How? Why, from finger-nails. The boys had let their nails grow an inch long, turned them under into claws, and sharpened the ends to a fine point. They could scratch like wild cats with 'em, and it is no wonder I got off with my life. But I did, and taught that school through the whole winter term, just the same. How? By wearing a sheet-iron mask over my face and a gum-coat on my back, carrying two revolvers in my belt, and keeping a constable in the ante-room. Don't think I'll take the job next winter, though. I'm no hog."—Chicago Herald.

A new movement has been inaugurated in New York and vicinity which promises important results. It is called "The King's Daughters." The first band was organized in January. Several ladies met and decided to organize a sisterhood of service to consist of various bands of ten, under the general title of "The King's Daughters." Already over one hundred separate "Tens" have been formed in New York, and at least one-quarter of that number in Brooklyn. These earnest, zealous women are engaged in the Master's field, caring for and clothing the needy, modest poor, ministering to the sick, and endeavoring to find employment for those out of service. In this manner they reach many whom the churches fail to reach, finding a particularly fruitful harvest among their modest, shrinking, and quietly suffering sisters.

Mr. JOHN R. BRANTLEY, of Douglassville, Ga., with creditable brotherly feelings, comes to his sister's rescue in the following card in the village paper: "Certain unscrupulous women who have no regard for truth have, with a view to injuring my sister's business, circulated a report that she is 'stuck up,' and does not respect country people. This is a false and malicious representation, whose author is as deceitful as she is ugly. My sister especially solicits the patronage of people who live in the country, and I guarantee that she will give them every attention and courtesy."

She Was a Little Old-Fashioned.

"Who is that lady?"

"Oh, that is Gen. Blank's wife."

"That can't be. She just whispered in his ear and then the two exchanged a smile."

"Oh, but you must know that she was originally a country girl and a little old-fashioned in her ways."—Boston Transcript.

M. LOUVER, an architect of Lyons, refers favorably to the extensive use of clinkers for foundation work in that city and neighborhood. The cost of these clinkers is stated to be about $2.50 per cubic yard, and a small quantity of common or hydraulic lime is mixed with them before using, the mixture being then wetted and rammed in layers. When arches or vaults are formed of this kind of concrete, care is necessary not to place the layers of material parallel to the surface of the ground or the curve of the centering, but to ram the layers in such a manner as will consolidate them vertically to the curve of the intrados. In this way all risk of shaking out any of the material is avoided.

The will of the late Thaddeus P. Stuart, of Burlington, Vt., bequeaths $200 in trust to the Vermont Methodist Conference. The will provides that at each annual session of the conference one of its members shall be appointed to visit the grave of the deceased the first Sunday in June, and there "preach a full and free salvation to all that may attend to hear." The minister appointed is to give timely notice to the churches of the hour this sermon will be preached, and is to receive $10 for his services, the interest on the $200 to be used for that purpose.

THERE is a large-sized unpleasantness in a church that does or rather did exist at Oconee, Georgia. The members were living together harmoniously and owned a neat church. All was peaceful till the preacher and deacons started to arguing the prohibition question, and then the parson got so mad that he turned all out of church who disagreed with him. Then the deacons, not to be outdone, went to the church, turned the parson out, and locked the doors. Now there is a dearth of ecclesiastical instruction in that town.

MRS. CLEVELAND'S HOME.
THE DOMESTIC QUARTERS OF THE GREAT WHITE HOUSE.
Gossip About Mrs. Cleveland and Her Daily Life—How and Where She Lived. The First Lady of the Land and Her Duties.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—The White House seems to fit Mrs. Cleveland as though it was made for her. She is liked by the servants, is fond of Washington society, and her little ears hear nothing but praises. She and the president are very loving, and their honeymoon is passing without a cloud, as far as can be seen, in the matrimonial sky. She is greatly interested in the country scene, and she finds the White House not unpleasant. The quarters of the president's wife are far different from those of the president. The public knows all about the latter. Mrs. Cleveland is now the head of the White House, and she has the entire control of its arrangements. President Cleveland was never a man of much domestic taste. He has not been in the basement of the White House more than once since the day of his inauguration, and he never goes down to the kitchen as President Arthur did, to have a word with the cook, or to direct the getting up of his dinner. President Cleveland has confined himself strictly to his office and his bedroom, and he has spent no more time in the other apartments than through the White House was a great hotel, and he was living in it.

The White House is, after all, much like a hotel. The president's family have only about one-third of it as their private quarters, and the public trot around through the remaining two-thirds of it. The house has cost about $2,000,000 and it is a big, old-fashioned structure with lots of wainscoting. The ceilings of the ground floor are thirty-two feet high, and the front vestibule and hall with its glass wall and marble floor is as cold as a barn and about as dreary. A half dozen messengers are always present in it, and it looks more like an entrance to an art gallery than to the private quarters of the ruler of a great republic. The East room would make a very nice ball room but it is of no earthly good except for grand receptions, and one might as well try to make a living room of a two acre field as it is thrown open to visitors until 2 o'clock every day. Its chairs always stand back against the wall as though they were chained there, and the big chandeliers which light it, though they cost $5,000 apiece, look like icebergs with their hundreds of prismatic, crystal pendants, and freeze the life out of any two, three, or half dozen people assembled below them. The Blue room, the Green room and the Red room are nice enough, but they lack the touches of life of the White House. The thousand and one little things which make up home comforts. They are pretty enough and grand enough, but one feels through the ought to see that it is a home kept straight while he sits in them, and it is hard to feel comfortable amid such surroundings. The result is that these rooms have never been home like ones, and the real home of the president is confined to the second story.

The east side of the second story of the White House is made up of offices. President Cleveland holds his cabinet meetings where Abraham Lincoln used to sleep during war times, and he has for his private office, where he receives his business callers, the oval library which Milmore's wife arranged and which formed the reception room. I think of Abigail Adams. The White House had not been half finished when John Adams came into it, and his wife did most of her entertaining on the second floor. The East room was a great, bare, uncarpeted place, and Mrs. Cleveland was very much amused the other day when one of the nannies of the White House told her that it was here that Mrs. Adams hung out her clothes on rainy wash days.

Mrs. Lincoln has one of the biggest rooms in the White House. It is just over the East room, and is the one in which Abraham Lincoln used to receive his callers during the war. There are four other rooms beside this in this part of the White House which are used for offices. One of these is devoted to the bookkeeping of the presidential mansion; another has a telegraph operator, a type writer and files of the leading newspapers of the country, and a third is a big waiting room, where callers are sometimes shown who wish to see the president. All these rooms are shut off from Mrs. Cleveland. She could come into them if she wished, but she does not do so. She has been several times into the president's private office, fingering over the books in the library, and taking now and then, one to her own room in another part of the house, but even these visits have been made when the president was alone.

If you could take a mammoth knife and cut the White House as you would a big cheese, you could, by drawing the blade across it from north to south at the end of the library, cut off Mrs. Cleveland's part of the White House from that of the president. She has five bed rooms and they are all large and airy. Jack off from the library there is a cozy room which used to be known as the "pink" room, and it was in this that Nellie Grant lived, and Nellie Grant occupied it during the last presidential term.

The president's bride chamber is the state bedroom, and I can tell you it looks different now to what it did when Mrs. Cleveland first came into it. There are more home touches, and the dressing table always has its flowers. When President Arthur was here he had his wife's picture, which hung on one of the walls, wreathed with roses every morning. Now the roses are every where about the room and the gardener has done his best to make it look beautiful. There is a wide lounge, or divan, at one side of the room, and the bed is of rosewood with a great canopy of silk brocade in gold and silver above it. A rich Turkish carpet covers the floor and there are a number of easy chairs, scattered about the room. Great chandeliers of wood lie upon the highly polished brass auditors, and the mantel is covered with a heavy velvet cloth of a red, thick red. There is a tidy on one of the arm chairs bearing the inscription in gold, white and blue silk:

"God bless our country and our president."

I wonder if Mrs. Cleveland made it and whether, if she did, she is jealous of the woman who did it. Every thing matches here in this room, but the toilet table looks far different now from what it did six weeks ago. It was in this room that the Prince of Wales slept when he visited this country, and if Victoria died soon enough the bride chamber of President Cleveland will have been the only guest chamber in the United States Cleveland's old room looks out upon the Potomac, and it may be that this will in time become the president's chamber. It is one of the most beautiful rooms in the house, and its furniture is made in imitation of hainbow with joints corresponding to those of a fishing rod. The chief objection to this room is the fact that Garfield lay here while he was sick, and one might fear that his ghost would visit its future occupants.

Mrs. Cleveland uses as her guest chamber the room at the southwest corner of the White House. It is a very pleasant room and it contains the only specimens of antique bedroom furniture in the executive mansion. The bedstead is a tall four-poster, and over it is an old fashioned canopy with silver hangings. The bed is so high that it takes a step ladder to get into it and there is a little one here for that purpose. The corridor which runs through the center of the White House from east to west is shut off just west of the library by a partition, so that between the bedrooms makes a very nice sitting room. This is luxuriously furnished and it has a window looking out on the stairs, and war and navy department and giving a view of Arlington and the Virginia hills.

There is an elevator that leads from the first to the second story of the White House, though very few people have ever seen it. It is a small affair nicely fitted up, and Mrs. Cleveland goes up in this very often in preference to the public stairway.

The kitchen of the White House is situated on the north side. It has rooms big enough for a parlor, and its ranges are large enough to roast an ox whole. There is a big pastry table in the cook room which would do for the counter of an auction house, and the cooking utensils are of copper; and as they hang on the white walls they shine so that you can see your face looking out of them. Hickory firewood is used in the grates of the White House, and great piles of it are stacked up in the halls of the basement. It is very clean throughout, this lower part of the White House. Everything is secured and scrubbed as though the place was preserved over by a Dutch housewife, and as you look at the tables you might imagine yourself to be in Holland. The stonework was whitewashed some time ago, and the whole, with its heavy columns and its massive walls several feet thick, make one think of the lower part of the Capitol building, a mile away on the hill.

There is a steam engine in this White House basement, and Mrs. Cleveland was interested when she was told that here, in this engine room, was the kitchen of Andrew Jackson. She looked at the twelve-foot fireplace, which still stands in it with its crane of iron, and she noted the mouth of the Dutch oven, in which the baking of the White House was then done.

The laundry of the White House is in the front part of the basement, and as you walk up to call upon the president, through the windows that open upwards you can, if you will glance down, see colored girls with caps on their heads ironing numerous garments, the names of which I would not like to mention here. These ward have an office down here, and so has the gardener, and there are some sleeping rooms for the servants, but the most of these, heard out of the house. There is a small office leading from the kitchen to the second floor.

The family room takes their meals in the private dining room, and the colored waiters wear swallow tail coats and white vests and black trousers when they wait upon them. Flowers are always upon the table, and when Mrs. Cleveland has any guests the garden of the White House sees that flowers are put in their chambers every day.

Mrs. Cleveland is fond of flowers, and she spends some time in the conservatory daily. The flowers used at the wedding, if they had been bought outside of the White House, would have cost several thousand dollars, and $50 worth of flowers are used at the White House daily. In these conservatories of the White House there are about $100,000 worth of flowers, and some of the plants are so rare and valuable as to be worth $1,000 apiece. Miss Cleveland's favorite flower was the rose. Mrs. Hayes adored the moss geranium. Mrs. Garfield went wild about orchids, and President Arthur did not consider himself dressed until he had a red rose in his buttonhole. I am told that Mrs. Cleveland is fond of all kinds of flowers, but that the president had never worn a buttonhole bouquet. It may be that his regard for the future will be the same as that of Ben Butler, who paid no attention to flowers until his wife, after their marriage, pinned one every day upon his coat, and now you never see old Ben without them.

Mrs. Cleveland is the first lady of the land. This word question of Washington society is not so settled. For the past five years we have been torn up here at Washington as to who was our social head. The wives of our supreme judges, of our cabinet ministers, of our speakers and of our presidents pro tem. have been belling their heads violently in claiming the right to the position. Even Mrs. McKinley and Miss Cleveland had, in the minds of some, a questionable title, and Mrs. Carlisle and Mrs. Sherman were thought by some to outrank them.

Mrs. Frank Cleveland is beyond doubt, our social queen, and a new regime may commence with her reign. She will sit at the head of the president's dinner table, and Mrs. Whitney, the Bayards and the Endicotts will elude from now on only by her reflected light. Mrs. Whitney may continue to give dinners and lunches at the rate of $2,500 or more apiece, and she will still be popular, but she will be nothing in comparison with the lady of the White House.

Mrs. Cleveland's duties though they are pleasant are not the easiest ones. She has to act so as to keep the president and herself popular in society. She must prevent herself from being used by any clique, and she will have to guard carefully that the politicians do not work upon the president through her by the medium of their wives. She will have to hold receptions, and at these her arm will grow tired, and she will feel ready to sink through the floor before the hand shaking ends. At Mrs. Cleveland's last reception she saw nearly 1,000 people shake hands with her, and her right arm was kept in continuous motion for nearly four hours in succession. When the president gives a reception Mrs. Cleveland will stand by his side and have her hand squeezed by all who go by. Some strong man will press it so hard as to almost bring tears to her eyes, but she must smile, think it nice and make a pleasant remark as they go onward. She will find some pleasant things at the state receptions, and though she will hear more of praise than of anything else, there will now and then be a snide under the rose, and the poison of envy will cause her uneasiness. She will be flattered by many, and she will meet the greatest and the best people of the country. At state dinners she will sit opposite the president in the great state dining room as our republican guest, but the therapist will stick in her throat as she sees the buckwheat congressmen, in his long frock coat and flashy necktie, trying to convey bits of the news to his mouth with his knife, and it will be hard for her to keep her face straight if he drinks the thin lemonade out of the finger bowl. Vocal question of social policy will be presented to her for settlement, and all the cranks of the country will write her letters. The women suffragists will ask her to preside at their conventions, and the policy of using wine at state dinners will come to her. She will find that her slightest utterances by letter or by word will be reported in the newspapers, and she will have to watch her tongue and her pen continuously. A false and false crowd will surround her, with her nose not there a true friend. But the hardness of her work will not begin before the next congressional session, and by that time she will be so coached by Mrs. Cleveland and her friends as to be ready for it. It seems to me that she is going to make a great success as the lady of the White House, and if she does, there will be no one more ready to say so than

FRANK GEORGE.

The following wonderful example of the power of will over physical suffering is from the Montreal Witness:

"The large W. H. Lewis was wearing a new dock, when, as is usual, a rope was thrown out and attached to the 'snubbing' post on the wharf. The other end of the rope was fastened to the post on deck. One of the hands, a man named Arthur Herbie, caught his leg between the post and the rope. The pressure (the bark being heavily laden) was so enormous that the poor fellow's leg was broken in three places, and his foot wrenched completely off by the ankle, and thrown several yards forward on the deck. A considerable number of people were assembled at the wharf at the time, and witnessed the occurrence with sensations of horror. Neither the Captain nor any of the hands could render any assistance, they were in such a condition of terror. The man himself displayed singular fortitude, never uttering a cry, and actually limped forward, took up his foot and examined it thoughtfully, at the same time covering the wounded stump with his stocking. Drs. Valois and Pare were soon in attendance. They did what they could for the sufferer, but gave it as their opinion that the leg would have to be amputated from above the knee. He was removed to the Notre Dame Hospital, never losing consciousness, and remarking to the Captain as he was being driven away that he hoped he would not forget to call and see him. The case is noteworthy for the remarkable example which it affords of the power of the will over physical suffering."

Unlike other cathartics, Dr. Pierce's 'Pulver' does not render the bowels costive after an operation, but on the contrary, establish a permanently healthy action. Being entirely vegetable, no particular care is required while using them. By druggists.

HENRY SEAW, the pubic-spirited citizen of St. Louis, has just presented that city with beautiful marble busts of Gaius and Verus. Four others have preceded them from the same generous source: Beethoven, Mozart, Rossini, and Wagner.

Sprains, lameness pains and stitches, weak back or disease of the spine will be immediately relieved on application of a Hop Plaster over the affected part. Its penetrative power is wonderful. Warranted to be the best made.

CANTERBURY is the place for self-sacrifice. When a young lady who has been eating onions appears at a country dance, all the rest bite an onion, that she may not feel embarrassed or lonely.

In the Dear Old Days.

We differ in creed and politics, but we are a unit all the same on the desirableness of a fine head of hair. If you mourn the loss of its blessing and ornament, a bottle or two of Parker's Hair Balsam will make you look as you did in the dear old days. It is worth trying. It is the only standard 50-cent article for the hair.

NINE-TENTHS of the worry of life is borrowed for nothing. Do your part; never leave it undone. Be industrious; be prudent; be courageous. Then throw anxiety to the winds. Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof; therefore do not borrow any trouble for tomorrow.

Is Your Liver out of Order?

Then is your whole system damaged—the blood is impure, the breath offensive, you have a headache, feel languid, dispirited and nervous, have no appetite, your sleep is troubled and unrefreshing. To prevent a more serious condition, take at once a half table-spoonful of Simmons' Liver Regulator, three times a day—it will soon restore the healthy action of the liver, bowels and kidneys.

"I recommend Simmons' Liver Regulator to all my friends, as I have personally known it to cure all liver disorders and sick headache. A. MERRIAM, Beverly, N. J."

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are teething. It relieves the little sufferers at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub wakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Jan. 19-cadwily.

I think Ely's Cream Balm is the best remedy for catarrh I ever saw. I never took anything that relieved me so quickly and I have not felt so well for a long time. I used to be troubled with severe headaches two or three times a week, but since using the balm have only had one and that was very light compared with the former ones.—A. J. Alcorn, agent U. P. Ry Co., Eaton, Co.

I find Ely's Cream Balm good for catarrh of long standing.—M. N. Lasky, 1284 West Chestnut St., Louisville.

ANSON ROUGH, of Blackberry, Ill., says he owes his life to Gilmore's Magnetic Elixir. Try it.

M. A. HIGGINS, of Wyoming, N. Y., says he had the piles for nearly 40 years, and was cured by using Gilmore's Pile specific.

WHY WILL YOU SUFFER from ague and malaria when Gilmore's Armonio Wine will cure you.

GILMORE'S NEURALGIA CURE is a positive cure for neuralgia in the face, side and stomach.

JOHN H. YATES, of Batavia, N. Y., says:

"I cheerfully commend your ATOMATON WINE. I did not know of it until I was cured. Through this weak frame of mine, it did for all my stomach ills. More than the doctor and his pills." For sale by Dreier & Bro's, and G. H. Gumpner.

TWO DEATHS.

Hiram Caston and Wm. Close
Smothered in a Well.

Hiram Caston was digging a well for Reuben Stahl, on DeWald street. He called Wm. Close, a friend, to assist him in the removal of a stone. Fire damp accumulated in the well in a moment and when Caston was being lowered he fell from the bucket to the bottom. Mr. Close believed his flight was an accident and descended after him. He too was overcome, and before they could be rescued, both men were smothered by the deadly gas. Mr. Caston leaves a wife and four children. Mr. Close leaves a wife, who has three children by a former husband. Dr. J. M. Dinneen, the coroner, held an inquest on both men and pronounced death accidental.

Good Neighbors Gone.

EDITOR SENTINEL:
I noticed in a recent number of THE SENTINEL an account of the death of two of my old neighbors of Adams township, Henry Rhodenbeck and Bernard Preppen (or Prepping as generally spelled). They were neighbors, and farms joined, both christians, the former a Lutheran, the latter a Catholic. Both warm hearted, earnest democrats, and died as they lived, without an enemy. They were among my near neighbors and fast friends, all the time I resided at Elm Park, over a quarter of a century, and when the "fortunes of war" was about to remove me from the neighborhood, I received no warmer tokens of regret and sympathy than from these substantial, hard-working farmers, and upright men, who in connection with other kind hearted neighbors, gave such substantial evidence of friendship and material aid (but which I could not accept) that I take this opportunity to give expression to my sorrow, which I know is felt by all their neighbors and acquaintances.

MISS ALICE JORDAN, the young lady student in the Yale Law School, will not be able to obtain the degree of bachelor of law from the university upon her graduation. Professor Dexter being asked, said the matter had not even been considered by the corporation, and added: "The corporation has never granted a degree to a woman, and I don't think it ever will."

How to Tell the Time by Night.

(From the "Sentinel," N. Y. "Times.")
Perhaps the most ingenious thing in the way of an advertising novelty that has come out for many years, is a unique contrivance issued by the Duffy Malt Whiskey Company, Baltimore, Md., proprietors of Duffy's pure malt-whiskey. Unlike most things of the kind, which the country has been deluged heretofore, this is a decided departure from the usual run, and aside from being one of the most attractive things we have ever seen, it involves a new discovery in science which is both interesting and instructive. So valuable was this discovery regarded it was awarded a first prize gold medal at the Brussels International Exposition, and it seems almost like prostituting science to put it to advertising purposes as it is something that is invaluable to institutions of learning, and would readily command a good price if put on sale. However, the Duffy people, appreciating its importance, have gotten it out in the highest artistic style, such as will secure for it a permanent place in every house in the country.
The device is called Duffy's Ancient Mariner's Stellar Time-Piece, its object being to furnish a guide whereby the correct time may be ascertained at any hour of the night, by observation of the North Star and three other bright stars near it, the four stars forming a Cross or Crucifix, which revolves round the celestial pole like the hands of a clock. By the aid of the Duffy's device, which represents a miniature Immortal and tabular dial, the time can be ascertained almost to the minute which is destined to render it invaluable to Mariners, Hunters, Fishermen and to the masses generally, as after a little practice, even a child will be able to tell the time at night.
Although the device is quite an expensive one, the proprietors intend distributing it free and in time every-body in the country will have one. Requests for same by mail, must be accompanied by six cents in postage stamps addressed to their Supply Department, as already they are flooded with applications.

New Potatoes reduced to 80c per peck.
